Port of Cadiz

An essential Port for cruises

Cadiz is experiencing rapid growth in Cruise traffic and has recently opened two passenger terminals. Cruise traffic through the port of Cadiz has tripled since 1996 and the port now attracts about 300 calls all year round. This makes it the second largest cruise port in Andalusia and it is quickly becoming more popular. Cruise vessels moor in the heart of the city, an ideal location for passengers who wish to visit the historic town at ease.

Being perfectly situated between the Med and the Atlantic oceans, Cadiz also enjoys being linked with North European Ports, especially the UK, Germany and Lisbon as well as the Canary Islands, Madeira, Portimao, Gibraltar, Malaga, Valencia and Barcelona. Cadiz is also close to Casablanca, Agadir, Tangiers and other North African areas. Cadiz is a consolidated and excellent departure point for the Caribbean as well as USA and South America.

The Port of the Bay of Cadiz is situated at latitude 36 degrees, 32 minutes north and longitude 6 degrees, 17 minutes west.

Tides: Maximum tidal range: 3,90 metres

The Port's main access channel has a depth of 13 meters in LST.

Cruise Moorings: The port of Cadiz has 2,000 metres of quayside for mooring cruise vessels up to 11.5 draft and two cruise terminals. The passenger terminals also offer facilities for passengers on a turnaround, and have hotels and all other facilities adjacent to the port area.

Gastronomy

A close-up, high-angle shot of a gourmet salad served in a white bowl. The salad is a colorful medley of ingredients: a large, thick piece of seared salmon with a golden-brown crust is the centerpiece. It is surrounded by sliced cucumbers, cherry tomatoes, shredded carrots, and various microgreens and edible flowers in shades of purple, pink, and red. The salad is dressed in a light, yellowish-orange dressing. The word 'Gastronomy' is overlaid in a large, white, serif font across the center of the image.
